MARWAR CAMEL CULTURE FESTIVAL

6TH - 8TH NOVEMBER 2015
SADRI, RAJASTHAN, INDIA

A Celebration of Rajasthan's State Animal and Unique Camel Culture

Under the patronage of

H.H. Maharaja Gaj Singhji II of Marwar

The Marwar Camel Culture Festival celebrates Rajasthan's camel heritage, showcases camel products and services and, most importantly, provides a forum for debate on the future of the camel, and forging partnerships and projects to promote the camel.

Held in a unique setting at the edge of the Kumbhalgarh Wildlife Sanctuary and in the core area of the Godwar Raika belt, it will bring together

- the Raika and other camel breeders from all over Rajasthan
- Artisans and craftspeople traditionally using camel raw materials or motives
- People from all over India and abroad interested in culture and animals
- Social entrepreneurs, philanthropists and investors willing to support camel related ventures (dairy, wool, eco-tourism, poo paper)

Culture

Meet the Raika and other custodians of a globally unique camel culture who continue to care for camels out of dedication and in a struggle against the odds!

Learning about Camels

Sign up for workshops and interactions that initiate you into the world of camels and their guardians!

Healthy and Creative Products

Come and sample camel milk cheese, luxuriate in camel soap or try out camel woolens, camel dhurries, camel poo paper and much more!

Arts and music

Admire this vanishing heritage and if you like you can purchase it directly from the artists.

Future and Ethics

Sit in on debates between camel breeders and policy makers about how we can take the camel into a sustainable future!
